

The Tuddenham Tattler

Issue No 71

Feb 2000

What did you do for the Millennium?

So many people have asked this question over the last few weeks and the answers have been as varied as they have been numerous. If you have an answer that would be interesting to our readers we would love to hear from you. Phone 785314.

We went up to London and in common with other village residents who made the trek we found the number of people daunting but the atmosphere incredible. Certainly a night to remember if only for the aching back and full bladder!

Many of you will have joined in at the village celebration on the Sunday. There were over a hundred residents as well as some very welcome guests at the service and bonfire and what a contrast to London!

This was much more personal and friendly and reminded some of those there of bonfire nights in the past when the whole village would join together in their celebrations. The accent was on relaxed informality and the evening was enjoyed by all present. Thanks to the organisers for all their preparations. For me this was the essence of village life and much valued.

Did anyone go to the Dome? Or have you been since? We would love to hear from you for future issues.....

Tattler Quiz Night

Where do we start to say thank you to all who helped us with this evening of activity?!

Well I hope the thanks were voiced on the night for the refreshments, the collecting of papers, the ticket collecting at the door, the setting up and taking apart of the hall, the question calling and adding up, the raffle, along with prizes donated as well as a financial donation. Martin and Newby did us proud with their "hardware round" as did the hairdressers in Tacket street called Antonio Giovanni for their "hairy round." Those of you who joined us on the night deserve a particular thank you for contributing to the over £600 profits which will go towards Romanian Child Action, running the Tattler for the year and the statue we hope to erect for the Millennium. The Tattler can hardly thank its Resting Reporter as she IS the Tattler but we all know how little the Tattler could achieve without her efforts, from bed or standing up! We wish her well.

Through this edition of the Tattler there are jokes taken from quizzies thanks to torture on the night. I hope everyone involved enjoyed the evening as much as I did and look forward to seeing you all next year when you are charged with the responsibility of getting the trophy back from that darned BT team!

What do you get if you cross a cement mixer with a burglar?
Concrete evidence, a hardened criminal, a concrete alibi, a hard case, pick and mix, a mixed up hard man, and a hard case to crack.

Our congrats to George Jennings for raising over £70 with his recent Bring and Buy sale to support the Blue Peter Appeal. Another time, George, get some publicity in advance by telling The Tattler – we are always delighted to hear of local events especially where they are the initiative of young people. ## The Tramp

Night shadows creep across oil-spilled puddles and somewhere the soft hum of tyres is heard, yet in the trees there is only the hush of wind breathing against dying winter oak and beech.
Chill rain runs in rivulets down steamy windows and an old man, homeless and hungry turns into the doorway, seeking warmth that is not there, remembering his life of long ago when satin, not newspapers was his bedding.
Shadows deepen around him, plying him with memories and dreams that by day elude him lost in the depth of the whiskey bottle, but clamouring now for attention, pounding at his fevered brain like demons, calling, taunting him as he curls hunched and shivering, nothing but a shadow as headlights etch him against cold stone and shimmering silent glass.

And when dawn comes, his frozen body, already stiff with death, unseeing eyes uplifted to the sky, is the only reminder of who he was before the stink of booze and nightmares swept him into a twilight world of endless empty days and nights, full of sneering faces, who in the security of their own lives, never saw beyond the rumpled dirty coat to the man who lived beneath the judge, the doctor, you or me.

The poem above comes from "Pun", a Poetry UK Newsletter which I found in the Library. If poetry is your game then follow it up for an interesting read with event and recommendations galore.

Their quote on the front page is from TS Elliot, "Genuine poetry can communicate before it is understood." That makes The Tattler poetry, I hope!

Dear Editor,

I am sure I am not alone in wishing to say a big THANK YOU to all those who worked so hard to make the Millennium Celebration in Tuddenham on 2nd January such a success. To Sam and Tony who gave us a lovely service and to Alan for the music; to all those who collected the firewood and built the magnificent bonfire, and for the very welcome refreshments, to Derek and Janet for letting us all invade their land, and to the committee who thought up the idea. I thought the whole celebration demonstrated the excellent community spirit in Tuddenham. Those of us who live here have a lot to be thankful for.

Special Delivery

Every time you receive a Tattler you have been the lucky recipient (or unlucky?!) of the hard work of one of our deliverers. They are Alison Robinette, Eileen Offord, Ken Williams, Jackie Lugo, Carol Frost, Janet Wells, Sandy Burns, Pauline Procter and our Raving Reporter.

If you would like to join our merry band please do fire an arrow towards Pear Tree Cottage or phone 785314. In the meantime thanks to all our helpers!

Ipswich Society

The Ipswich Society are holding a symposium on 23rd June in the Grand Hall of the Corn Exchange from 9.00-17.30pm. All six speakers are to address the audience on the subject of "Ipswich from the first to the third Millennium". We hope to send one of our many reporters to this event and will keep you informed. Are any residents planning to attend? Please tell us. In the newsletter for the society is news that Ipswich in Bloom was a success with over 400 entries in the internal competitions and an overall second place. Work is already starting on the 2000 campaign so phone 262020 for details....

Charter Anniversary

The Millennium celebrations have coincided with the 800th anniversary of Ipswich receiving the charter from King John.

The Children's Society Sports Challenge on 29th April, HMS Grafton's Freedom of the Borough, and special celebrations of Charter Day on 29th June are planned. The Ipswich Arts Association is also promoting a series of eight tapestry wall hangings to illustrate the history of the town. They will be in the Tourist Information Centre.

Explanations

In early December I set myself the target of calling on every house in the village. Yes, I know that December is not a good month with early, dark evenings, bad weather and very busy households. However I was so fired up with enthusiasm at the results of The Tattler to produce a Millennium Card that I couldn't wait to show everyone in the village. My aim was to show and discuss the card, leave one to be looked at, call again to collect orders and again to deliver and collect cash. I didn't realise when I started how long this would take. By the week before Xmas 800 cards had been delivered with requests of "Will we be able to have more in the New Year?" The cards have been used for Xmas, invitations, commiserations, thank yous, get well messages, and overseas greetings. Some people have framed them.

I would like to see the cash situation sorted out before I start the next round so could those who have forgotten because the last few weeks have been very busy please settle up as soon as possible.

Because I've been totally out of action since Xmas I haven't been able to call on anybody but as the weather improves I shall be buzzing about again to make sure everyone has the chance to see Tuddenham St. Martin in 1887.

Tattler Quiz Night

One Saturday night in January we set out for the Village Hall clutching our bottle of wine and wondering why we had let ourselves be talked into this! It was a cold night and we were sure we would be much happier staying in our warm house.

You are probably all wondering where we were going and why we had put ourselves in a position where we could not back out. A certain person in the village had talked us into buying tickets for the QUIZ NIGHT. We had never been to a quiz night before and were convinced that we would not know the answer to many questions, hence the reason for our reluctance. Answering questions on the television when you are at home on your own is OK because there is no one to let down but sitting at a table with four other people in a full hall is another matter.

When we arrived at the hall it was filling up rapidly and was packed to capacity by the time we started. The quiz master and organiser were dressed for the part which added to the fun. Suddenly we were under starter's orders and the excitement quickly built up, albeit with a little help from the odd bottle or two. At half time refreshments were served and thanks must go to Jackie Lugo and her helpers. Then it was "off" again for the final part. The quiz master had his work cut out to keep us all under control but he succeeded and the evening ended on a high note.

Suffice it to say that we can't wait for the next quiz night – great company, well organised and GREAT FUN. Isn't that what it is all about??

Tuddenham Tattler Quiz

When asked if I would like to join a table for the quiz night my first thought was "Oh no! I don't like them!" However I decided if I wish to become involved with village life I should give it a try. Decision made.

Janet said she would pick me up, reminding me to bring a drink and a glass. We arrived early so as to get a parking place. I wondered just how many people would be there. Well, what a surprise – at 7.30 the village hall was full. It was an extremely well organised event. There was laughter all around with everyone enjoying themselves. Each team had six members and the questions were not as daunting as I had feared. In fact we did quite well. When the answers were called out as we went along one heard great shouts of "YES, YES" or "OH, NO!" It was absolutely brilliant.

Refreshments were most welcome at the interval.

The evening was rounded off with a raffle. Then, finally, thanks were given for all who had helped. I really look forward to next year's quiz.

What a super village Tuddenham is. So many hard working people to unite us. How pleased I am that I moved here!

Joyce Lovitt, Fynn Lane.

Editor: So the questions were easier than you had feared, well I can arrange harder ones so see you next year, Joyce, and thanks for your support!

More Tuddenham Tattler Quiz

“Come to the village quiz,” they said. “The questions aren’t difficult,” they said. Raise money for the village hall. I checked it out. £4.50 per ticket including refreshments; come in a team of six if you can (but not crucial) bring your own drink and glasses. I found a couple of friends willing to take a chance and decided to give it a try – maybe I am too frightened of Margaret T to dare say no?!

I was amazed on the night to find twenty one tables for six players each, plus a small stage for the “Question master and his accomplice – now known as “The Iron Lady Returns”) squeezed into our village hall. The tables were already labelled with names for the teams – we didn’t fancy being labelled as the slugs and opted to be wasps!

The contest started promptly at 7.30pm. There was a jokes round, “Who’s this?”, a picture round, and a “whose logo?” round as well as ten ordinary rounds. These latter had some bewildering titles such as “St. John, factoids, Martin and Newby”. When should we play our joker? I thought “factoids” might be a medical round on unpleasant diseases (but it wasn’t). There was no round on sport, relief from my team, but nothing on geography – dismay! In fact the range of questions was very wide; truly “general knowledge.”

My team came last in the quiz but I swear it was very close! Embarrassingly we then seemed to win nearly all the raffle prizes – not fixed, I promise!

Come next year, it’s fun! I am planning to haunt Martin and Newby from now on and try to learn the names of obscure fixtures and fittings – and get a willing eight or nine year old child to coach me in jokes then I will do well – you know, the “Why did the submarine blush?” variety!
